I would like to comment on Issue 13, HHSC's advisory committees. While I agree, in theory, that combining some advisory committees could improve efficiency of HHSC staff, I disagree strongly that committees should be removed from statute. If your objective is to do away completely with stakeholder input, I can't think of a better way to do that than by removing advisory committees from statute.

I don't believe the Commissioner of any agency would be inclined to create and over see advisory committee's that would increase the work load of staff. This would kill advisory committees and stakeholder input as well.

I intend to oppose this vigorously at the legislative level.

Sincerely

Steve Hull
