Your Comments About the Staff Report, Including Recommendations Supported or Opposed:

I am commenting on the Sunset Commission Staff Report and in response to the public hearing on the Behavioral Health Licensing Boards held on Wednesday, April 25, 2018.

I support the recommendation that the boards regulating LPCs, LMFTs, Social Workers, and Psychologists be housed at the new Texas Behavioral Health Executive Council, as this will create a more efficient and effective structure for all professionals who deliver mental health services in Texas.

The Texas Behavioral Health Executive Council will not create one combined board for all mental health professionals. Each of the four licensing boards will retain their integrity and rule-making authority for each distinct discipline.

I support creation of the Texas Behavioral Health Executive Council, but request that the professional members appointed to BHEC by each licensing board have voting privileges on BHEC.

Under the Texas Behavioral Health Executive Council, each board will still be appointed by the Governor as currently set forth in the Occupations Code.

Each board's rule-making authority will remain intact and licenses will be issued by each Board – not by BHEC.

The Texas Behavioral Health Executive Council is essentially an administrative agency – not a licensing board. It will achieve efficiencies and consistency where appropriate, such as in administrative activities related to applications and investigations.

The Texas Behavioral Health Executive Council will not be authorized to establish rules. They will review rules but will only be able to reject or send rules back to each board if the rules violate current statutes or create anti-competitive, monopolistic, or anti-trust scenarios.

Maintaining the status quo or creating two separate administrative agencies for the four mental health licensing boards is NOT the most efficient use of taxpayer dollars. The state's interests are best served by forming ONE agency as recommended in the Sunset Commission Staff Report.

Holding a doctorate is not unique to psychologists. Many other mental health providers also hold this prestigious degree. This is no reason to have a stand-alone agency for psychologists. In fact, many psychologists are dually licensed by one of the other mental health boards – another reason they should be housed at BHEC.

There should be just one agency to handle the administration of all the mental health professional licensing boards. This model will make it easy for the public to both find providers and learn how to file complaints when necessary.

Creation of the Texas Behavioral Health Executive Council was recommended unanimously by the last Sunset Commission. The bill to create BHEC passed unanimously from the House Public Health Committee because it is a great, strong design that will best serve Texas.

Any Alternative or New Recommendations on This Agency:

Your Comments About the Staff Report, Including Recommendations Supported or Opposed:

The Structure of the State's Behavioral Health Licensing Agencies is Antiquated and Inefficient. Overall, we agree with the Sunset Commission staff finding in Issue 1 to consolidate the four behavioral health boards into a single agency – the Behavioral Health Executive Council.

- We commend the work of the behavioral health boards housed at HHSC to streamline licensing procedures by eliminating unnecessary paperwork, adopting policies to expedite complaint resolution, and developing penalty matrices to provide clarity and consistency in disciplinary actions. We also agree that despite these efforts, the administrative attachment of the TSBEP, TSBEMFT and TSBSWE to HHSC continues to impair the functioning of these programs. We also hear from our members that long waits for license approvals keeps them in limbo, prevents them from finding work and/or losing job offers.
- We agree that a consolidated agency structure offers distinct advantages to the current behavioral health regulatory system. The Behavioral Health Executive Council will leverage the benefits of consolidation without sacrificing the quality, independence, accessibility and accountability of the four behavioral health licensing boards. In addition, this collaborative effort allows BHEC to realize economies of scale in the areas of information technology, human resources and staff training while fostering a spirit of cooperation to achieve regulatory best practices, protect the public, and better serve their respective constituencies.
- We also support transitioning the administrative structure of the Texas State Board of Examiners of Psychologists to transform an existing agency focused on one profession into an agency that incorporates all four of the behavioral health professions currently under Sunset Review.
- We disagree with the Sunset Staff recommendation for the Behavioral Health Executive Council composition and authority. We recommend that BHEC be structured as proposed during the last Sunset Review to include one professional and one public member appointed by each board with the presiding officer, a public member, appointed by the Governor. This structure will effectively address concerns involving the protection of the state's immunity from restraint of trade claims and will also protect against any anti-competitive rulemaking from the independent boards. Each of the four behavioral health boards would have full rulemaking authority over scope of practice, qualifications and training. BHEC would have authority to review and approve or reject rules promulgated by the independent licensure boards to ensure they are consistent with statutes, are not anticompetitive, do not result in restraint of trade, or cause monopoly concerns. Inclusion of one professional member from each of the respective licensing boards helps to ensure that professional expertise is reflected in BHEC's decisions. This model has proven to be very effective for other regulatory entities such as the Occupational Therapy and Physical Therapy Executive Council.

Issue 2: Key Elements of the Behavioral Health Boards' Statutes, Rules and Policies Do Not Conform to Common Licensing Standards Overall, we agree with the Sunset Commission staff finding that the behavioral health licensing boards need to continue to address processes around criminal background checks and the reporting of outside disciplinary data. We also support efforts to ensure that qualifications for licensure be reasonable and objective.

Issue 6: Although Issue 6 specifically addresses the Psychology Interjurisdictional Compact, each of the behavioral health professions undergoing Sunset review has portability challenges. This Sunset review presents an opportunity to explore strategies to address those challenges for all behavioral health profession

Any Alternative or New Recommendations on This Agency:

- TCA concurs with the staff findings that:
  - o “. . . the boards are acting in good faith and have made notable strides in addressing the previously identified problems. . . However, significant problems and challenges remain that cannot be resolved within the current structure.”
  - o “. . . the continued administrative attachment of the marriage and family therapy, professional counseling and social work boards to a large agency. . . is still not working. . . The dysfunction created by such a model places the livelihoods of licensees in jeopardy and puts the public at risk.”
- TCA supports the staff recommendation that:
  - o “. . . the consolidated agency [TSBEMFT, TSBEPC, TSBSWE and TSBEP] structure of the Behavioral Health Executive Council presents the best approach to align the regulation of these behavioral health professions and elevate the attention and oversight of these programs.”
  - o “More efficient and effective regulation of these professions will not only provide improved services and increased responsiveness to licensees but also will better protect behavioral health care consumers.”
- TCA disagrees with the staff recommendation that:
  - o “. . . The executive council would be composed of one public member appointed by each of the four boards and an independent presiding officer appointed by the governor.” We recommend the structure of BHEC as proposed during the last Sunset Review to include one professional and one public member appointed by each board, with the presiding officer appointed by the Governor.
    - None of the boards that regulate health professionals is composed exclusively of public members. In fact, the Sunset Commission staff recommendations for the Board of Medical Examiners does not propose to restructure that Board to create an all or majority public member structure.
    - The original recommendation for BHEC still creates a public majority board. Including professional members brings expertise that would likely be lost if BHEC was composed of public members with professional members relegated to “ex officio” roles.
    - The behavioral health regulatory boards currently housed at HHSC work collaboratively with respect for the uniqueness of each specialization. This is evidenced by their implementation of consistent disciplinary matrices and alignment of rules where appropriate.
    - Including professional members on BHEC is much more likely to enhance consistency in standards than interference on standards of practice, licensing and enforcement decisions since no profession would hold a majority on BHEC.
